

A Short Guide to the new Graduate Degree Course Search

To access the new DCE Course Search and Registration, please go to: <https://courses.dce.harvard.edu/>.

We are excited to introduce you to our new for '22 Graduate Degree course search!

Please review this document for step-by-step instructions on how to navigate this new tool.

If you have any questions, we are here to help!

Please send a message to your Academic Advisor via your Degree Candidate Portal (accessed via MyDCE) or at academic_advising@extension.harvard.edu.

Step 1: Search for Graduate Degree Classes

From the Search Classes menu, scroll down to the Degree and Certificate Programs Course Search section (located towards the bottom left of the page), and select Courses in a Graduate Degree.

Advising Tips:

- We recognize there are many ways you can search for your classes in the new course catalog.
- The Courses in a Graduate Degree search is the only way to know a course counts towards your degree program.
- Make sure you are viewing your Academic Progress Report (found in your Degree Candidate Portal) while viewing the course search and choosing courses.

Step 2: Select your Graduate Degree Program

Follow the steps below to select your degree concentration.

First, use the drop-down menu, or type the name of your degree concentration in the text box to select your Graduate Degree.

Next, click on the Explore Program button.

Step 3: Explore the courses applicable to your degree program

After you have clicked on the Explore Program button (see previous step), a new panel with more detailed Program Information will appear that will allow you to select courses applicable to your degree concentration.

Select Degree Courses to view all courses that may count towards your degree. To view only courses that fulfill specific degree requirements:

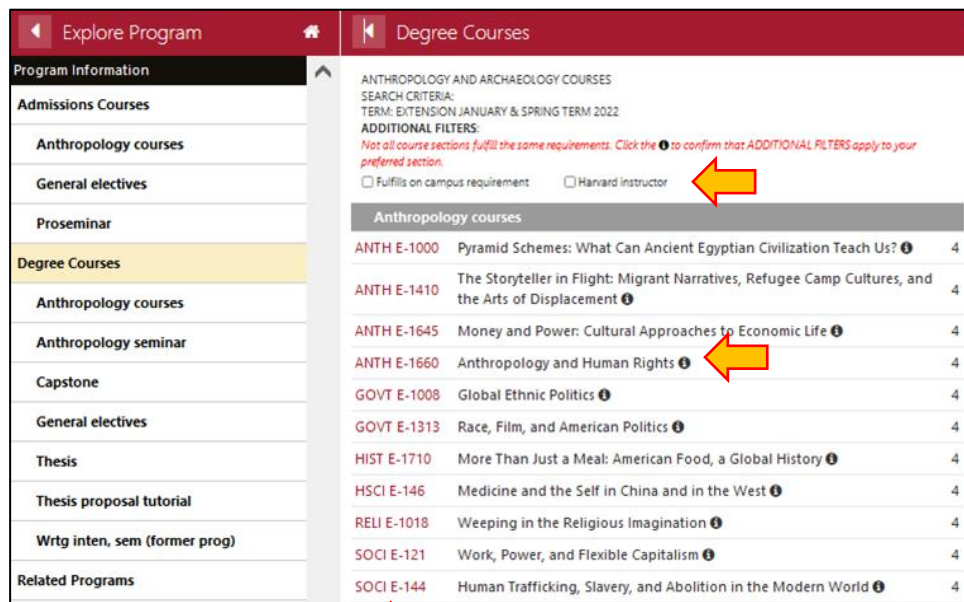

- Click on the specific degree requirement heading (i.e. Anthropology courses, Capstone, Thesis)
- Courses may appear under multiple headings, so be sure to verify it fulfills your remaining degree requirements.
- Please note these headings correspond to the ones that are listed on your Academic Progress Report.

Select Related Programs link to see the Graduate Certificates that relate to your degree program.

Step 4: Select courses

Once you have clicked a degree requirement heading a list of applicable courses will appear.

Use the checkboxes to apply additional on campus requirement or Harvard Instructor filters.

Not all course sections fulfill the same requirements. Click the i (link) to confirm if the additional on campus/Harvard Instructor filters apply to a particular section of the course.

Select the course number (link) to view more information about individual courses

Step 5: View specific course information/Add a course to your registration cart

After you have selected a course, another panel will open that includes course information.

Coming Soon! At the very bottom of this panel there will be Add to Cart link where you can register for the course.

Description

How much of your impression of the ancient world was put there by Hollywood, music videos, or orientalist musings out of the West? How accurate are these depictions? Does it matter? This course examines the quintessential example of the "exotic, mysterious ancient world"—ancient Egypt—to interrogate these questions. Who has used ancient Egypt as a construct, and to what purpose? Did you know that pyramids, mummies, King Tut, and Cleopatra represent just the (overtyped) tip of a very rich civilization that holds plenty of life lessons for today? Combine the ancient Egyptians' explanations of the world's natural forces with all the social complexity of human interaction and you have a fully formed society—about four millennia of accumulated experience! Can investigating the real ancient Egypt unlock our current misconceptions about the land of the pharaohs? Hardly mummies, tomb-building, sorcery, the Egyptians embraced life in all its messy details. Piety and corruption, imperialism and isolationism, divinity and mortality all played significant roles in life along the Nile. What can we learn about the nature of politics and society in our time by seeing the parallels between the ancient past and today? We explore archaeology, modern Egyptomania, regeneration, new digital visualization technologies, and international politics. What was ancient Egyptian racism? What is archaeological racism? Who owns the past? Who needs it? We take excursions into Egyptian art, history, politics, religion, literature and language (hieroglyphs), plus examine the evolution of Egyptology as a discipline.

Notes

The recorded lectures are from the Harvard Faculty of Arts and Sciences course Gen Ed 1099. Registered students can ordinarily live stream the lectures Mondays and Wednesdays, 1:20-2:45 pm starting January 24 or they can watch them on demand. Videos are available within 24 hours of the lecture.
